Picture This! We Really Shouldn’t be Meeting Like This

In a potentially crowded place such as a busy restaurant, unintended contact between workers is a definite possibility. The guy carrying the bussing tray isn’t watching where he’s walking and the server on the other side of the wall probably won’t have time to react and avoid a collision. It could be worse. She could have hot plates of food on her serving tray instead of what appears to be cold beverages. Luckily this is a set up shot illustrating a hazard and the need for maintaining situational awareness. (WorkSafeBC photo)

Unfamiliar Work Areas Can Be Dangerous